“On the Sunday before the feast known now as Palm Sunday, the Roman Governor, Pilate, rode into Jerusalem seated on his magnificent horse, along with a large garrison of cavalry and foot soldiers. People would have come out to witness the pageantry of it: thousands of soldiers with weapons, the beating of drums... On Palm Sunday, Jesus also entered Jerusalem, from the other side of the city, seated on a donkey. This was not a coincidence; this procession was planned in advance and carefully thought out. The reign of Jesus was to be a reign of peace that would banish chariots...Jesus intended his procession – which today would be called a ‘counter-demonstration’ – to contrast the two reigns, the Reign of God and the reign of Caesar, two very different visions of life on earth.”

Peter McVerry, SJ

Palm branches are a symbol of rejoicing, solidarity, welcoming and community.

In Pre-Christian times. Palms were a symbol of triumph and in Roman times the word ‘palma’ could even be substituted for the word for victory. Jesus’ entry into Jerusalem this Palm Sunday reminds us of the humility of Jesus ‘earthly life, from beginning to end.
